Manufacturers make a huge contribution to the economy in the Sheffield City Region

Welcome to the first ever comprehensive list showing the Top 50 SMEs operating in the manufacturing sector across the Sheffield City Region.

There's absolutely no doubt that these companies make a hugely valuable contribution to the economy throughout the Sheffield City Region. Between them they directly employ 6,807 people, which is up from 6,298 on the previous year, and have a combined turnover of more than £810 million. This has grown by more than £54 million from the year before.

Crucially, profits before tax are also increasing too, and stand at just over £66 million, compared to almost £58 million in the previous year. There's no denying this growth is impressive, especially when you remind yourself that this is a list of SMEs, which are businesses with less than 250 employees.

Heading the table is Barnsley based furniture manufacturer Silkstone Finance Limited, the parent company of Ultima Furniture Systems, which posted a remarkable set of figures which saw turnover rise by 37% to just over £25 million. Impressively, the company has more than doubled its pre-tax profits in the same period to £4.37 million, as well as creating 44 new jobs.

Another Barnsley based company that stands out for its solid growth figures, is Compass Engineering, which sits at number 16 in the table. The family owned structural steelwork fabrication company was formed in 1985 and specialises in the design, build and manufacture of all types of steel structures.

The company's products are used in a huge range of commercial buildings throughout the UK and turnover at the end of 2015 stood at £18.7 million, which was up from just over £12 million the year before – an increase of 55%. The company's pre-tax profits have also risen at a notable rate, climbing to £2.253 million from £1.592 million.

It's clear from this table that the majority of manufacturers in the Sheffield City Region are performing well, with the vast majority experiencing good levels of growth in recent years. It remains to be seen what impact Brexit will have on this, but as with anything in business, there are likely to be winners and losers.

The challenge for companies in our region is to protect themselves from the potential risks this could present, whilst ensuring they can capitalise on the opportunities that arise from change.

The future of manufacturing in Sheffield City Region

There's certainly a lot of conflicting messages in the media about what's happening within the sector. Data from the Office for National Statistics revealed that British manufacturing production fell sharply in July, which was the first full month after Britain voted to leave the EU.

According to the official figures, manufacturing production, a measure of how much British factories are making, fell by 0.9% compared to June, which was more than double the 0.4% drop that had been predicted by economists. However, on an annual basis, manufacturing production still grew by 0.8%, although this was substantially below the 1.7% that was initially forecast.

We've also heard recently from The Confederation of British Industry that UK manufacturers are receiving more overseas orders than at any point since August 2014. The fall in sterling is helping to bolster export orders further, although the downside of this means it's more expensive to import materials, so many manufacturers are finding themselves facing a tricky balancing act. However, this is nothing new for those that regularly operate in overseas markets.

In addition, the new Prime Minister
Theresa May is making announcements

For financial periods of more than or fewer than 52 weeks, the figures have been annualised on a pro-rata basis. Private company information can be incomplete: in preparing this table every reasonable effort has been made to ensure that no qualifying companies have been omitted. In certain circumstances the compilers of the table have made exceptions to the qualification criteria and their decision is final. Nominations for next year's table are welcome at info@bhp.co.uk.

Manufacturers can't afford to miss R&D tax breaks

By its very nature manufacturing is a very capital intensive business, and as a result, approximately 70% of all the UK's research and development (R&D) investment comes from manufacturers.

However, vast numbers of manufacturers are still failing to take advantage of the generous tax breaks that are available and we regularly see companies only claiming back a fraction of what's actually available to them. Sometimes businesses have preconceptions that they 'don't do' R&D, or that it's such a small investment that it's not worth making a claim, but often it's surprising how much a claim can be worth.

The tax relief is available across all types of initiatives including patents, new manufacturing processes, environmental improvements, software development and product development. It can cover the costs of staff working on R&D projects, expenses relating to materials and equipment as well as costs for subcontractors that have assisted with such projects. Even R&D projects that have been unsuccessful are eligible for the relief.

Since the incentive was first introduced in 2000, the rates have gradually become more generous and are now worth up to 230% for SMEs. This means that for each £100 of qualifying costs, the corporation tax paid by SMEs on income could be cut by a further £26.

Another big incentive for manufacturers is the annual investment allowance (AIA) which is a tax relief to support businesses investing in plant and machinery. Since 2008 the rate of this relief has changed four times, which has only served to complicate matters.

The most recent change means that from the start of the year, AIA came down from £500,000 to £200,000. This means that if a business buys a piece of equipment, that qualifies for AIA, 100% of the cost of that asset, up to £200,000, can be deducted from the company's profit before working out how much tax it has to pay. This can obviously make a big difference to a company's tax bill.

Often companies can take advantage of both R&D relief and AIA without even realising it, over the last year BHP has agreed tax repayments of over £1,100,000 with HMRC on behalf of our clients. So it is worth checking to see if you can save some money as well.

The future of manufacturing in Sheffield City Region (continued)

Since the EU Referendum, all eyes have been on the UK's manufacturing sector to see how it will react to the Brexit decision.

that could have a positive impact on both the Sheffield City Region, as well as its manufacturing industry as a whole. Since coming into Number 10, she has openly backed the development of the Northern Powerhouse and highlighted that the Sheffield City Region has agreed a devolution deal with Whitehall, and will vote for a combined authority mayor next May.

The PM also reconfirmed government plans for high speed rail investment, part of which includes the creation of the £6 billion Trans-Pennine tunnel between Manchester and Sheffield, which could almost halve journey times between the cities and will encourage businesses to invest here.

However, in the short-term, businesses must focus on what's happening within their own four walls, and they must also arm themselves with expert advice, so that they can plan for all eventualities.
